On 7 March, WEP Board Member Chery Miller participated the seminar as moderator, organised by Parliament for journalists on International Women's Day 2018: women in media and ICT.

By building strong networks among and beyond themselves, women entrepreneurs will be able to gain better access into the booming ICT sector and be better prepared to benefit their businesses and EU economy! Digitalization of women entrepreneurship, innovation training and social skills development including communication skills to better access to and better use of technology and STEAM science, technology, engineering, arts and mathematics skills for girls and women should be top of all national, regional and international agendas. WE should not forget that women's empowerment would only be strengthened by how the information is framed and used. The influence of media on public opinion should finally find its right path in favour of the 52% of the Europe's population: Women!

Happy IWD!
